cinnati on the 14th day of June, 1876, and to nom-inate five Previdential Electors.

The committee is of opinion that it will be im-practicable to avoid holding two Conventions, and that the purposes of this Convention are not of sufficient importance to justify calling for large county delegations, and therafore suggests that each county will send five delegates—these delegates to be appelnized by the County Executive Committee, or by County Convention, as such committee may desse excellent. It is proposed to call another e by County Convention, as such committee may seen expedient. It is proposed to call another arrention during the summer, at which the conticed differences, or previous party affiliations, ho are in favor of making such changes in our vs as time and experience have shown necessary; he are in favor of the continued proceeding and malaisment of official corruption, and who are in your of retrenchment and economy in the administration of our State states. on of our State affairs.

Death of Major Newlin.

It is our sad duty to chronicle the death of Major Cyrul Nowlin, which occurred at the Wickham House, in this place, on Friday morning last at Soclock A. M. The particulara, as related to us by Col. James B. Peck, who was present when Major Nowlin was first struck down, are substantially as follows: On Wednesday night, about bed-time, the deceased was in conversation with Col. Peck and other gentlemen, on the plainform in front of the hotel, and seemed in usual health. He complained of being thirsty, and stepped into the saloon to get a lemonade, and as he was returning Col. Peck awh him fall te his knees. He immediately ran to his assistance, but finding the Major too heavy for him he called to Mr. Baldwin Ballard, and the two carried him into Col. Peck's room, the blood streaming from his mouth during the time. A physician was sent for and all was done for him that medical skill could suggest, but it was impossible to stop the hemorrhage, and in thirty-six hours he breathed his last. His friends were notified of his condition by telegraph, but he sank so rapidly that it was long the property of the property Death of Major Newlin. Col. Peck saw him fall te his knees. His friends were notified of his condition by telegraph, but he sank so rapidly that it was impossible for them to reach him before prish death. Court was adjourned, and a meeting of the bar held, the proceedings of which are published claewhere. A ledgram from his friends directed him to be burfed here, and all that is mortal of Cyrus Newlin now lies on the hill overlooking New river. Peace be to his ashes.—Mountain Herail.

cuity, and he wasdied rather than walked. It is stated that it was a difficult feat for him to step into a carriage, and that it would be impossible for him to run or even walk for any considerable distance without becoming utterly exhausted.

Taking all these things into consideration, the greatestaur prise is expressed by the general public that Tweed has been able to conceal his hiding place so successfully. Sheriff Conner has menearching in every direction for Tweed. He and his men have followed out every clue that they have gained, but the results have been so barren that they have become discouraged. If Tweed had gone to a foreign port which is not included in the extradition treaties with this country, some one, it is believed, would have recognized him there and sent word to this city. The fact that he has not been seen nor positively heard from as living in or passing through any other State or country has influenced a great many persons to believe that Tweed never left this city, but is concealed in some secure place, where he has every want supplied.

country has influenced a great many persons to believe that Tweed never left this city, but is concealed in some secure typico, where he has every want supplied, a and is served by faithful attendants who would guard his secret with their lives. Superintendent Walling says that he believes that Tweed is living somewhere in Canada; that trustworthy information has been received that points conclusively to Canada as his present hiding place. If Tweed, he adds, could have easily made his arrangements to get upon a train at some obscure crossing. Disguised and texpected by friends, who had previously secured a private state-room in a car, he could have traveled over the route without even the conductor knowing that he was on the train.

Nevertheless, the Superintendent admits that Tweed may still be concealed in this city. He could remain here very easily and none of the persons in-pursuit

The reunion of the Disciples mentioned in our last took place yesterday, as per agreement, Elder Chas. L. Loos preaching.
The photographs of the school buildings on exhibition in J. D. Lloyd's show window, attract much attention. The old Jefferson Seminary, a fine and commoditions structure in its day, now presents a dispidated appearance; windows and doors gone. Once it accommodated nearly, if not all, the school-going inclined; now its dimensions would not hold the pupils of one room of the public school building.

About all the dead in the old-grave yard have been removed and decently interred in Brooke Cemetery.

The prevailing hard times has brought forth a disposition to produce something. Several vacant lots have been fenced in. In the new town of Lazearville there seems to be considerable activity. The amo of Robert McNabb will be handed down to future generations as the first to build him a house in the new town. William Mayhall is next, and it is rumored that Mr. Lazear will build a dozen or more good substantial dwellings. Those who are not going to build on their tots are letting them out to be worked on the shares. Lazearville cannot help but be a success. We will not be surprised to hear of our friend, Geo. Freshwater, Eq., laying out his fine bottom land, just south of Lazearville, into town lots and offering them for sale. Success to enterprise.

The Tweed Mystery.

The New York Tribone says: Nearly four mouths have elapsed since William M. Steam Street Car in Philadelphia.

The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin of the 20th inst.says: Yesterday afternoon a trial of the Woodbury steam street car took place on the line of the Market Street Railway Company, and was witnessed by Mayor Stokley, members of the Select and Common Councils, and a number of invited guests. These all assembled at Forty-first street and Haverford road, and after the car was full, six horse cars were brought into requisition to accommodate the party. The car traveled out to the Centennial grounds, and from there to the public buildings, passing around the shortest curves with ease and rapidity, frightened no horses, and went over the steepest grades on the road without any forced efforts. The engine of this car, which is vertical in its action, is built around the boiler and in turning a curve turns with the fore wheels. The smoke and steam are consumed by exhaust pipes, so that one of the most serious objections against steam travel is thus removed.

Removing Life's Henviest Burden.

To remove the burden of disease, the heaviest that poor humanity is compelled to bear, is certainly a grant object, a glodious mission. A sautedly the discovere of a remedy which accomplishes this result is entitled to the gratitude and respect of mankind. Such a remedy is Hostetter's Stomark Bitters, whose great success is attributable to the fact that its resinantive action upon the debilitated and disordered system is in accordance with the principles of continuo sends. It invigarates the sick, and, as their atrength increases, the burden of disease grown lighter. It reforms those physical irregularities which render weakness chronic, and thus gradicates the will at its very source. Liver compilating manufactures are completely remayed by the combined tonic and alternative operation of the litters.

THE GREAT NERVINE.

It is the remedy in painful inflammatory affections—Rheumatism, or any other excessively patibul disease—as by quieting the nerves it produces immediate relations. Palyintion of the Heart, Shortness of Breath, and hysterics immedia elymot like most remedies, requiring soveral hours to experience their beneficial effects.

Control preparation not only curve the nervousness caused by Swing Drink, as Delirium Tremens, but leasen or wholly destroys the appetite for simplesses. CAPS
